GENERAL TELEGRAMS.

The Sepate on Indian Affairs. LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 25 .- An Indian | ing towns. Territory special says: "The Senate Committee on Indian Affairs have arrived, and their visit is creating great interest. They began their work at Muckogee, Creek Nation. The most important question, other than the sale of Oklakoma and the Chero kee strip, will be that of citizenship. The Indians claim that their territory is being | river touth of town. overrun by whites claiming Indian blood. Many hundreds have been declared intruders and ordered to leave, but the Interior Department has prevented their ejectment. The proposed sale or lease of the western portion of their territory is being warmly discussed. An outright sale is generally opposed, but its vocates claim it is gaining ground. In the Cherokee Nation there is wide diversity of opinion, and a communication signed by many leading Cherokees has been sent to the President, asking that he defer sending the special commissioner who will negotiate for the purchase of the territory until after the election of the new Legislature, on August 1, so that the new measure can be brought before the people and deliberated upon during the campaign. Although there is no decided stand yet taken by the leaders of the five tribes who must unite on a decision, the opinion prevails that Bushy.head, principal Chief of the Cherokees, and J. M. McCurtain, Governor of the Choctaws, is also said to be in sympathy with the move to dispose of the lands."

Special to the Sentinel. Madison, Ind., May 25.-Last Saturday night the colored brethren of the M. E. Church of Milton, Ky., gave a strawberry festival to raise a little fund to pay off debts, and all the colored folks from Milton and a great many from the backwoods of Trimble County gathered at the building and expected to enjoy an uninterrupted evening of | crop. pleasure by eating ice cream and drinking circus lemonade. All had gathered for this Jordan: these were Al Smith and Morris Johnson, of this city; they went over to | twenty-one years, who left her home two | cellent and poorer parts in their cuts, raise a row and mar the peace and happiness of other folks. They raised a row, and are now suffering from the effects of having the contents of a double-barrelled shot-gun emp-tied into their backs and arms. When Johnson's employer called on him yesterday to see when he would be able to work, he said: "I reckon I'll be out in a couple of two or three days, but I decla' I ain't gwine to bodder de Kaintucky coons any more. I'se gwine to stay away from yon side ob de riber." Both are filled with buckshot, but will be up in a few days again. The doctors have extracted sixty-four shot from Johnson's hide already.

Terrific Ternado.

ALTON, Ill, May 25.-Last night this city was struck by a tornado, which burst fro n the south west, sweeping across the river with terrific fary. Several large buildings on the river front were damaged, some of them seriously. Among them were the National Mills, the Roller Mills, J. A. Ryers' grocery store, Hawley's warehouse, Drury, Mead & Co., the Drummond-Randall tobacco factory the glass works and others. The most serious damage was to Ryers' store, the third story being wrecked and half the roof taken off. Wooden awnings, fences and shade trees were blown down in all directions. Three freight cars on the Chicago and Alton siding were blown off, blocking the main track. The miner losses throughout the city aggregate a large amount, and it is feared the damage in the low lands across the river was serious. Large planks and timbers were carried a long distance. Saveral pieces of stone capping on the fire-wail of the Roller Mill, each weighing 400 or 500 pounds, were carried over on the roof. In the city during the storm there was consternation amounting nearly to a panic.

Pleuro Pneamonia.

CHICAGO, May 25 .- Dr. V. H. Paarin, Illinois State Veterinarian, is in the city to-day, after having made a tour of the pleuro-pneumonia infected districts in Missouri. He declines to detail the results in full of his investigation, as he had not yet reported to the | under its authority. Governor, but enough is learned from him to warrant the assertion that the situation is not near so bad as was at first reported. Great pressure has been brought to bear on Governor Ogiesby to have him relax somewhat in his restrictions regarding the receipt of cattle from Missouri in this State. Dr. Pasrin's report will undoubtedly have the effect of causing the Governor to modify the present rules to a large degree. The State Veterinarian of Wisconsin accompanied Dr. Paarin on a visit to the quarantined locali-ties. In Kane County, Dr. Paarin says the people in that section impressed the Wisconsin representative as being averse to aiding the Illinois State authorities in their efforts to stamp out pleuro-pneumonia. and he decided to report to the Wisconsin State authorities advising a quarantine against Lilinois.

Lebanon Laconics.

Special to the Sentinel. LEBANON, Ind., May 25 .- During a heavy wind storm yesterday afternoon John Morris, living near New Ross, Montgomery County, and returning home from this city to his home, was killed by an old tree which was blown across the road as he passed along near the Jackson school-house six miles west. He lived only thirty minutes.

Ez Gamble, a young man working for Geo. White, south of this city, was killed by lightning Friday afternoon while in the granary getting corn. His brother was near the building and was badly shocked.

Von H Neal, a compositor on the Pioneer, died yesterday at 10 o'clock, after four weeks sickness. His case has been rather a remarkable one, and there is a disagreement of the dectors as to its exact nature. There were symptoms of lead poisoning. He was buried this afternoon by the K. of P, of which he was an honored member. The funeral was conducted at the Methodist Church by Rev. A. Lewis.

Black-Tongue Diphtheria. Pittsburg, May 25 .- A special to the Chronicle Talegraph from Steubenville, O., says: 'The epidemic which broke out a few days ago at Paris, Pa., is thought to be spreading. Another child of Nieholas Trux, who has already lost two, is down and not expected to live, as is also a step-daughter named Gardner. Kennedy Trux, who lost five children and his wife and became a raving maniac, is in a critical condition. The disease has broken out at Hanlin's Station, on the Pan-Handle Road Several cases are there. The story is related that while in a drinking salcon the night prior to his departure the returns were stolen from his overcoat pocket and destroyed.

Regarding Riel's Trial.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 25 .- It is understood to be more than likely that Riel will be tried under an act of Edward III., entitled "an act defining which offenses shall be adjudged treason." If Riel were an American born citizen, he could be tried under the provisions of Capt. 14 of Dominion acts 1867, 1868, but the old maxim which declares "once a British subject always a British subject," may still have sufficient force to operate as a bar to conviction, in case of trial

BUYING MEAT AND FISH.

Suggestions From the Butcher.

The Favorite Cuts of Beef and How it Looks When Fresh-Points About Veal-Notes From the Fish Stalls.

[St. Louis Republican.]

"Servants attend to the marketing of their rich employers, while poorer housekeepers do it themselves," said an aproned butcher in a Baltimore market-stall a few days ago. "We make the most out of the latter because they don't know how to buy, and of course we get our prices. Some servants make a little out of us and give themselves the credit for the transaction by pocketing the difference. They also pilfer many articles which their masters pay for, and here we get another advantage by increased sales. The housekeeper who tries to make both ends meet should know a thing or two about purchasing her edibles-how to get them cheaply and how to get her money's worth, and if you want to make a nost of friends go shead and get up some points for

A butcher being found and questioned, said, with much geniality: "Sure as you live, American houseksepers have lots to learn in the choice and purchase of meats to the best advantage; but then the American butchers themselves are in some measure to blame from the way they cut up their mest. Now, in England, where meats, especially beef and mutton, are better understood than in any other countries, the mode of cutting up is very different from our way. Their prime cuts are all prime, to the exclusion of any inferior attachments, and for such the highest prices can be demanded with a clear conscience. Then come the cuts, ranking next in quality and price; and so on all down the scale to the cheapest seller and buyer can know just exactly what is being disposed of and the just equivalent However, though that is a mighty fair way, it couldn't be made to work in this country. American butchers, you see, are obliged, in especially in the matter of beef, to meet the requirements of housekeepers here, who, for the most part, never know how to cook the poorer parts alone in as palatable a manner as housekeepers of other countries, where meat is far scarcer and deaver than here, and must consequently be made to go further and more of a genuine treat than in this country. However, our own consumers may be taught to considerably improve their chances of obtaining their full money's worth by observing a few simple rules." 'Suppose you offer some suggestions that may instruct them," said the reporter.

"Good enough. Well, in the general selection of beef, for instance, the housekeeper will do well to remember that, if young, it will have a fine, smooth, open grain, a good, wholesome redness of color, and will feet tender, while the fat should be white rather than yellow-the whiter and firmer the better. Indeed, when the fat of beef is of a deep or dull color the meat is seldom goo t, and should be systematically avoided When fed with oil cakes the fat of beef will be usually of this color and the flesh flabby In the selection of any cut of beef whatever a strict observance of these simple rules will soffice to insure even the most inexperibuyer against imposition. Then egain, if beef is overfresh the fact will make itself apparent by the smell, which will be soggestive of excessive bloodi dess, quite as readily as in the case of overkept or tainted beef, whose odor is sickening. The last precaution will apply to every other kind of meat as well as to beef.

"In the way of steaks, let me say tha there is one sort, and a moderately priced one, that has not its superior for jaiciness, nutriment, general flavor, and economy. This is the flat k steak. It is torn out of a bulk of pure fat, in which it is as thoroughly imbedded as are the kidneys themselves, is boneless as a matter of course, and after baing deprived of a thin filmy skin and properly scored criss-cross with the knife, together with some pounding, if somewhat old, can't be beat either for boiling or frying. In some other cities the flank steak commands the highest price, not even excepting the porterbouse, but is as yet comparatively unknown, and consequently cheap, retailing between fourteen and sixteen cents a pound. Oh, yes, the flank is the boss steak, and don't you forget it! Economical housekeepers would do well to go for it while it "In selecting yeal but one general rule is necessary. The whitest is the most juicy and remains cheap.

therefore preferable. "Mutten should be judged by its fine grain, good color and white fat, and lamb will speak for itself on much the same principles. If the latter has a greenish or yellow ish cast it is stale and unfit to eat. Now, here let me afford a hint or two about mutton stews. The best as well as the cheapest, for this purpose is the breast. This part can be bought for four or five cents a pound and a breast weighing three pounds would make an ample stew or main dinner dish for three or four grown persons with lively appetites ' A pork butcher, to whom the reporter next applied for information, was brief and somewhat surley, but commendably to the point "Oh, anybody," said he, "can tell good pork from bad, if he isn't a blamed idiot, unless it's a woman. If the rind of pork is tough and thick, then it's old; if it's thin and springy, then it's young, and young pork is most desirable. When pork is fresh the meat will be smooth and cool; if clammy, it is tainted, and shouldn't be touched with a forty foot pole-except, it may be, for sausages. In choosing bacon see that the rind is thin, the lat firm and of a reddish tinge, and the lean of a good color and sticks pretty fast to the bone. It is then good, and not old.
If you are particular about a bam, just stick a sharp knife under the bone. If it comes out with a clean pleasant smell, it is good. It the knife is daubed and has a suspicious scent, don't buy it " A poultry dealer, to whom the reporter next applied, was a wordy little man, whose fund of information in his particular line is compressed as follows: "The old way of festing a fowl's tenderness or toughness by yanking it at the wing to see whether the skin directly underneath tears or not don't smount to much, and moreover spoils the prepossession of the bird for the next investigator in case you don't want to buy. General appearances are better to judge by. If a turkey, for instance, is young, the legs will be black and smooth, the eyes lively. and the feet flexible. If old, the eyes will be sunken and the feet dry. In choosing hens see that the legs and combs are limber, which means that they are young. If the legs and combs are ro-gh and stiff, they are old, but may be good enough for a pie or soup. A young goose will have a yellow bill and limber feet. An old goose will have both bill and feet red and dry. Ducks, if young, will be limber-footed; if fat, hard and thick on the lower part of the body. The same rule applies to wild ducks, whose feet, though, are red, besides being smaller than those of tame ducks. Game can be just as easily selected, if you know how, which most folks don't. Partridges, for instance, if young, will have black I bills and yellow legs; if old, white bills and | THIS

"Freshness," said a fish dealer with owlish eyes, wiseacre spit-curls, and an oracular manner, to whom the reporter next applied, "freshness counts more with fish than any other sort of food. And why? Because they're out of their native element when exposed for sale. That's as natural as going to sleep; but then the desired freshness evinces of fish, and likewise the staleness, which ain't so much desired. A good, edible cod, let me say, will have very red gills, the body thick at the neck, the flesh white and firm and comething of brightness remaining in the eyes. When flabby, the cod sin't to be bankered after-least of all bought. Here is a fine salmon whose newness is sitested by the fine redness of the flesh and particularly of the gills, the bright-ness of the scales, and the stiffness of the entire body. Shad, if good, are white and thick, gills red, eyes bright and body stiff and firm. Much the same requirement should be looked for in the mackerel and with extra care, for the mackerel is so tender that he dossn't carry or keep so well unsalted as other fish. In choosing striped bass, if the eyes are sunken and the gills pale, they have been too long out of the Rhuberb Mold.-Take one quart of red rhubard and cut it in pieces; put it in a saucepan with a lid and let it boil till quite a pulp; melt a half-ounce of gelatine in het water; when dissolved put it with one pound of powdered white sugar to the rhubarb and boil for fifteen minutes; add a few drops of essence of lemon; pour the rhubarb into a mold. Next day dip the mold in hot water, turn out into a glass dish pour round it some custard made as follows: The yelks of two eggs, a tumbler of milk, four lumps of sugar; simmer till thick; add a few drops of essence of vanilla.

Coldslaw Dressing. - The yelks of three raw eggs, a teaspoonful of salt and the same of mustard. Beat these well together, then add very slowly three tablespoonsful of clive oil and one of best white wine vinegar.
